

Iridology - Client Informed Consent Statement

My practitioner has explained the strengths and limitations of iridology to me prior to my assessment. I understand that an iris assessment serves as a guide for information collection in conjunction with my family health history, personal health history and current system profile.

I have been informed that iridology is used to assess a persons health potential in terms of the genetically inherited strengths and vulnerabilities. I understand that an iridology assessment cannot provide a diagnosis for disease and further medical assessments and test results are often needed to clarify whether inherited iris signs are symptomatically current and active.
