Muris came in today for an exercise stress echo to rule out significant myocardial ischemia. He did well on the stress test. Based on the clinical, ECG, and echo findings, the stress echo was negative for inducible ischemia. Moreover, he reports that he is symptomatically better. Following this I have discharged him to his GP and have recommended no medications from my end.

With regards to the multiple supplements he take, I have not initiated him on these and these are not in my preview. So, I am sorry I would not be able to answer those queries.

Yours sincerely,
