/2 Harrington, Tracy 2/11/1965

Tracy has numerous other complaints mostly related to food intolerances and dyspepsia so I have asked her to keep taking Pantoprazole for the time being. I note that she had a normal gastroscopy not so long ago and has apparently had various other scans and investigations so I will limit my input to a few extra blood tests.

Other than being fairly small framed at 47kg there were no obvious abnormalities on examination today with no chest wall rashes, tenderness or deformities and no pleural or pericardial rubs.

Her ECG shows some mild ST segment depression in the inferior leads but was otherwise normal.

As a matter of precaution I have referred her for a CTCA/CTPA at Chestrad in Nedlands who have a fast low dose scanner.

In summary then she appears to have had a prolonged systemic inflammatory response after her Pfizer vaccine 18 months ago and her symptoms have run a remitting and relapsing course mostly suggestive of pleurisy so I have organised a trial of Colchicine, a CT scan and blood tests including an autoimmune and inflammatory screen.

I hope her symptoms improve markedly after commencement of colchicine and will review her again in one month's time to see how she is faring.

Yours sincerely
